W. S. S. DRIVE DO YOU KNOW

That when you buy $1,000 in War Savings Stamps you are simply discounting your Government's note for that amount and deducting your interest in advance; that you can cash it any time by giving ten day's notice at the post-office, without discount or deduction although this should not be done unless necessary requires it; that you can make your pledge now and have until January 1919 to take the stamps and pay for them; that Bethel must take its quota of nearly $34,000 before June 28th either in sales or pledges; that in order to do this every person must do his or her part.

All the service here is done without compensation in this War Stamp Campaign and many are contributing to advertising most generously. It is a patriotic duty for everyone to make a personal effort to meet our quota.

Many are buying generously already but if Bethel goes "over the top" everyone who can, must take the limit of $1,000. Do not think that the women and children must do this—they will do their part as they are doing it in everything connected with the war—but this is also a man's business—it is just as important as Liberty bonds.

Remember that in June
$1,000.00 costs $834.00
$ 500.00 costs $417.00
$ 250.00 costs $208.50
$ 100.00 costs $83.80
E. C. PARK, Local Chairman.

ROSETTA M. YOUNG

Mrs. Rosetta M. Young, widow of the late Emory G. Young, formerly of Bethel, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jesse F. Libby, in Gorham, N. H., on Wednesday, June 13, at the advanced age of 85 years.

Mrs. Young was the oldest child of Edmund and Belle Frost Merrill and was the last to pass away of a family of eight children. It being a coincidence in the family that of the children who reached maturity all three girls died in June and the children passed away, the youngest first and then on up to the oldest.

Since the death of her husband a number of years ago Mrs. Young has lived with her children, but making her home for the most of the time with her daughter. In feeble health for the last years of her life she lived in the joy of her children and grandchildren, and received the tender care of a loving daughter until the end.

Three children survive, Mrs. Eva Libby of Gorham, N. H., Marie E. of Berlin and Ray C. of Gorham, besides several grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the home of Mrs. Libby in Gorham on Friday noon and burial was at Locke's Mills.

Incomplete returns from 25 States show that nearly 5,400,000 women have registered for war work under the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.
The 12-cylinder Liberty motor, according to a statement by the War Department, weighs 825 pounds and develops 450 horsepower, or a weight of 1.8 pounds per horsepower. The gasoline consumption is approximately 0.16 pound per horsepower hour.
There is no discrimination of any kind between soldiers who are not citizens of the United States and the native born or naturalized citizens in the American Army, excepting that the former can not hold commissions. In all other respects—care, attention, privileges, etc.—they are all on the same footing.

RED CROSS NOTES

A communication has been received from the New England Division of the American Red Cross asking all Chapters, Branches and Auxiliaries to discontinue giving knitted articles, with the exception of socks, to any draftee as it is expected the Government will call in all woolen goods issued to soldiers including those distributed by the Red Cross.

The Bethel Branch is prepared to furnish all the draftees going from Bethel and her Auxiliaries with socks and a comfort bag. If those called would notify the secretary of the Bethel Branch as soon as they receive their notification it would be a help to those having the work in charge.

As there is a great demand for knitted goods at this time will those who have been knitting for the Red Cross, if unable to continue the work, please return their needles.

The West Bethel branch social for the benefit of the Red Cross will be held at Grange Hall, June 29 instead of June 25 as stated last week.

We wish to correct an article that appeared in this paper two weeks ago stating that the Red Cross of West Bethel will hold a benefit sale July 4th. Such a sale and dance is to be held after noon and evening of July 4th, but it is under the management of the original Red Cross Workers, now called the Home Fund, and is in no way connected with the Red Cross Auxiliary which has been organized here recently. There will be useful and fancy articles, ice cream, tonics and peanuts on sale in the afternoon. Dancing afternoon and evening, and a strawberry supper served at six o'clock. The net proceeds are to be given to the Red Cross. Don't forget us that day, but give us all the help you can—it is for the boys. Home Fund Committee.

CLOSING NOTICE

Beginning Saturday, June 22, the Citizen office will be closed on Saturday afternoons until Dec. 1st.

Next to the aggregate number of subscribers, perhaps the most striking feature of the third Liberty loan was the support given it by the farming and rural populations of the country, according to a statement by the Treasury Department. Not only did the farmers purchase liberally of the bonds, but the rural communities as a rule were more prompt in completing their quotas of the loan than the larger cities. More than 20,000 communities in the United States subscribed or oversubscribed their quotas, many of them on the first day of the campaign. The majority of these were not cities, but country districts.

WHAT NOT TO CAN

Mamie Bunch, State Leader in Home Economics, University of Illinois

Our canning problem needs to be reduced to a very sound common-sense basis this year and only those products canned which cannot be better kept in some other way.

During the furious canning campaigns of the past few years, I have found parsnips, carrots, onions, cabbage, sweet potatoes and even Irish potatoes canned—all of which is sheer nonsense as each of these could have been kept as effectively in a much simpler way.

I was told by a representative of a large canning plant that commercial canners have been asked not to can pork and beans, hominy or other products which can be kept perfectly well without the use of tin. This is on account of the tin shortage.

The same principle is to be applied in our homes and only products put up in cans which cannot be kept in any other way.

Stone jars of small size with stone covers or with paper or cloth covers pasted on, can be used for preserves in which the sugar acts as a preservative or for any type of pickle in which vinegar and spices act as preserving agents. These containers are out of the question for fruit or vegetables which are not preserved or pickled.

It is wasteful to put into large containers any sort of preserves or relishes that is used in small quantities only, since there is sure to be waste when the product stands long unsealed and is used frequently.

Glazed earthenware jars are good for putting down eggs in water glass. They should be furnished with tight covers to prevent the solution from becoming dense through evaporation.

Every housewife should study the ways and means for the storage of root crops, such as turnips, carrots and rutabagas, which are kept from freezing by alternate layers of straw and earth. Sweet potatoes can be stored in baskets in a warm attic. Navy beans and lima beans and other legumes it would be wiser to store dry than to attempt to can.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE—EFFICIENT

Eva J. Lehmann

She who spends two hours in washing dishes, that with ordinary efficiency could be done in half an hour, is working an hour and a half overtime when she might be improving her opportunities or doing something she would better like to do.

The woman who putters around all day until dark, doing a washing that could have been finished in the forenoon if she had only known how, is inefficient and wears herself out in strain of body and mind.

When I tell you that a good breakfast for six people can be prepared and put on the table in twenty-five minutes, the average woman will not believe me. To do this you must have everything where you can put your hands upon it without extra moves.

It is easier to peel the potatoes and get the vegetables and dessert ready while doing the morning work than to prepare them at the last possible minute and rush through the cooking.

I knew a woman who insisted on having her washing on the line on Monday, rain or shine, and on having her ironing done at the latest by Wednesday noon. If it was not done at that time everyone in the house was made most uncomfortable. She thought she was efficient and methodical but she was not. She tired herself body and soul. She was unfit to do the things that made life really worth the living.

Efficiency means nothing more than less than doing what we must do or want to do in the way that brings best results to our everyday lives and makes us glad we can do things and glad to live.

YES, I AM KNITTING

By a Farm Wife

Yes, I am knitting sweaters. No, I do not neglect my housework or any other duty. Also I am practicing conservation down to the very crumbs and I am doing work that I never tried to do before. For my knitting I use time that would otherwise be wasted as far as my hands are concerned though I have never found much time to waste—the days have never had enough hours.

I knit in my car, at lectures and at club meetings, in odd moments of waiting when ordinarily I would pick up a bit of light reading or when nerves and body demand that I sit still and relax.

Do you think I am ostentatious, to carry my knitting about publicly? You may think so if you like, but just the same my sweaters seem to me to grow rather magically.

And you say that a knitting machine can do the work better and more quickly than a hundred women can! Probably true—undoubtedly true. But a knitting machine takes capital to set up.

The knitting that I and my countless sisters are doing takes no capital to start, is redeeming thousands of otherwise wasted hours and is winning back to usefulness many women who are physically unable to render other service or who have for years regarded themselves as exempt from the common lot of toil.

Beware lest in opposing any measure meant to help, you array yourselves on the side of brutality and oppression.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 500,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

STABLE VENTILATION

Something which is often neglected but which is one of the essentials of a satisfactory stable is an adequate system of ventilation. This is true no matter what kind of animals are to be kept in the stable. The requirements for different animals are not the same but ventilation is needed for all. In planning the ventilation system there are two fundamental things to consider.

1. The walls of the stable should be double boarded with an air space between, so that heat will not escape rapidly through the walls. The ceiling should be of the same construction unless hay is stored over head.

2. Cold air should enter and foul air escape only through regularly constructed flues. In this way any heat that escapes will be utilized in ventilating buildings.

Size of Flues
The flue should be large enough to allow a movement of air at the rate of 200-300 feet per minute.

Requirements of Various Animals
Horse, 71 cubic ft. per min. per head
Cow, 69 cubic ft. per min. per head
Swine, 23.2 cubic ft. per min. per head
Sheep, 15.3 cubic ft. per min. per head
Hen, 5.24 cubic ft. per min. per head

The method for determining number of cows for which a definite sized flue will provide ventilation assuming 16 inches by 22 inches are the dimensions of the flue is as follows:

16 inches x 22 inches divided by 144 equals 2.44 square feet. 2.44 x 295 ft. per minute divided by 59 cubic feet per cow equals 12 head.

Location and Construction of Flues
The walls should be air tight and protected so as not to destroy the draft by allowing the air to cool too rapidly. Galvanized iron is the best material to use, but matched boards lined with paper make an excellent substitute. Avoid bends or turns as the flue has no greater capacity than its smallest area. The intake should be located not over one foot from the floor, as the carbon dioxide and various organic poisons exhaled by the animals are heavier than air and remain near the floor. The top of the flue should extend three feet above the ridge of the barn.

There are two ways of constructing the flue:

1. Carry along outside wall under roof to the ventilators.
2. Carry along outside wall to the ceiling, then across the top of ceiling to the center of the barn, extending from this point to the ventilators. This method is advisable if hay is stored over the cows, as better insulation is afforded the ventilators.

Fresh Air Intake
The flue should be air tight with inlets near the foundation of the building and outlets within eight inches of the ceiling, so that the cold air may mingle with the warm inside air before reaching the animals. The intake should not be over 12 feet apart and have a joint capacity slightly exceeding total air flues. The air should enter at least three feet below outlet, with inlet at foundation giving best results.

While galvanized iron is preferable in the construction, lining a space between two wall timbers with paper will serve.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Experimented On?

Kidney troubles are getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has dizzy spells, headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Overworked kidneys must have a rest. Take things easier; live more carefully. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with other kidneys. Thousands have already tested Doan's. You have their experience to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Bethel. Here's one:

Mrs. Walter E. Bartlett, Chapman St., Bethel, says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I used this medicine some time ago and the results I received were in every way satisfactory. Since then, I have had no return of the trouble."

Mrs. Cox was the daughter of John Millett Bryant, and the late Mrs. Harriet (Herick) Bryant; and was born in Welchville in 1884. For many years the Bryant family have lived in Woodstock, but the Cox family lived in West Paris last season, returning to their farm late in the fall. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, John E. Cox, her father, J. Millett Bryant, and four brothers, Aubrey and Archie Bryant of Auburn, Elmer and Jesse of West Paris, and three sisters, Annie E. McLeod of Auburn, Mrs. Lora Herick and Mrs. Bessie Herick of West Paris. During her long illness she maintained her patience and courage, and many friends regret her death. Markley as before stated. Rev. Mr. Markley was engaged and the notice given to your correspondent but a change was made later. Rev. H. H. Hathaway of the Baptist church and Rev. H. A. Markley assisted in the service. Mr. Markley had an urgent call to Waterville to supply a pulpit on Sunday, but declined much preferring to be at his own church to extend its hospitality to the visiting clergyman, and add his word of appreciation and encouragement to the graduating class.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, ferns and the colors. Dr. Phelps gave a very able and helpful discourse. Miss Alice Barden sang a solo and the High school quartette, Marjorie McAllister, Edith Stevens, Earle Bane, Russell Briggs, sang, Miss Lane, the church organist, played. Sunday evening Dr. Phelps was again invited to speak, taking for his subject, "What is Life?" The church was again filled to listen to this eloquent speaker.

Monday evening the High school operetta, "Windmills of Holland," was repeated in Grange Hall to a good sized house. The only specialties was a declamation, "When Rubenstein Played," by Earle Hollis, which was especially well rendered. Mr. Hollis won first prize in the prize speaking contest of West Paris High school, 1917, giving the same piece. A dance with music by Stowellmore followed the play and the proceeds were given to the Red Cross.
